THE LEGEND

Our forefathers claim the gods
created two creatures to protect the people.
Both are big like wolves, with red fiery eyes
and the morphology of a dog.

One, white like foam, is guardian of the light
and protector of those who are good.
The other, black like coal, is a marauder in the shadows and scares misdirected souls into straighten out their lives.

Both are dedicated to serve and
bring out he best in our people.
Mythologically, they represent the duality we all have inside.
